

URL Encoding

URL Encoding (also known as percent encoding) is the process of converting a URL so as to replace reserved characters that have a special meaning with special escape character sequences.

For example / might be replaced with %2F and (with %28.

This is done to differentiate between when the characters used as text and when they are used in their special meaning.

From:

<http://docs.intenogroup.com/glossary/> - Inteno Glossary

Permanent link:

http://docs.intenogroup.com/glossary/u/url_encoding

Last update: 2018/08/10 18:16

